Alberta to Get Federal Aid on Harvest Labor

OTTAWA, Aug. 27.—(CP)—Labor Minister Mitchell announced last night that an agreement is being negotiated to provide Alberta with financial assistance from the federal treasury in a move to ease the harvest labor situation in that province.

The amount which will be provided in the agreement has not been given out, the announcement said, but it is understood the money is to be used for meeting necessary expenses in connection with recruitment of farm labor and for defraying costs of moving workers to and from harvest fields.

The minister's announcement, made in a statement issued by the Unemployment Insurance Commission, said steps to deal with the Alberta harvest labor situation—subject of concern not only to the province but to the federal government as well—have already been taken.

CO-OPERATIVE BASIS
Through a plan formulated by the advisory committee on harvest labor for Alberta, under chairmanship of W. H. Ross, manager of the employment and claims office of the Unemployment Insurance Commission at Calgary, farmers were being urged to work co-operatively with a view to saving the crop.

Mr. Ross and his colleagues have worked on the principle that voluntary co-operation among farmers, if properly organized, will go a long way to relieve the situation, the commission's statement said.

Today's War Moves

News of the Russian offensive in the Rzhev-Vyazma area west of Moscow is most heartening, not for what it has accomplished so far but for the effect it may have on Adolf Hitler's winter strategy.

Russia, as has been expected, is taking advantage of Hitler's unbalanced strength on the long front from Leningrad to the Caucasus. The German war machine is top-heavy in the south, where Hitler is making a supreme effort, regardless of cost, to reach the Volga, the Caspian and the Black Sea and settle down for the winter.

Prime Minister Churchill Visits Troops in Middle East

Farewell to the ground crew, Prime Minister Churchill waves as he leaves an airfield during his tour of the desert front. Topper hoisted on stick, "Winnie" makes sure none will be missed.

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, Australia, Aug. 27.—(CP)—Japanese forces, defeating Allied air attacks and a tropical deluge, landed yesterday at Milne Bay, on the southeast tip of New Guinea, but an Allied spokesman said the landing had been anticipated and that the enemy had been engaged immediately by Allied ground forces.

The bay, about 10 miles wide at its mouth and 20 miles long, is at the tip of Papua some 225 miles from Allied-held Port Moresby—apparently Japan's first aim—about 40 miles from the closest point on the Australian mainland.

The coast there is flat, fringed with mangrove swamps and cut by several creeks abounding with crocodiles and alligators.

Besides pounding the ships and landing barges which ferried the invaders ashore, Allied fighters in four-engine flying fortresses, single-engine Kittyhawk fighters and marauders, caused the Japanese heavy losses of fuel.

Unofficial reports said the fighter pilots had particular success strafing enemy troops and shore positions and machine-gunning enemy-held beaches and barges while the bombers were left to fend for themselves without air support.

The Allied spokesman gave first word of the new enemy thrust.

Launch Largest U.S. Battleship

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The 33,000-ton, largest battleship the United States ever built, slipped down the ways of the Brooklyn navy yard today.

The mighty vessel was "launched months ahead of schedule" and is ready to "fire faster and farther than any other ship afloat," said Ralph A. Bard, assistant secretary of the navy, who spoke at the launching.

Miners Strike

FLORENCE, N.S., Aug. 27.—(CP)—Florence colliery of the Nova Scotia Steel and Coal Company stopped producing today when 700 miners refused to work in sympathy with 26 men who left their wages yesterday in a protest over pay.

Dieppe Lessons Being Studied Editors Told

By CHARLES BRUCE
SOMEWHERE IN ENGLAND, Aug. 27.—(CP Cable)—Lt. Gen. A. G. McNaughton told a group of newspaper editors that "if anyone thinks we are going to sit back of the ditch, which is the channel, he has another think coming."

Gen. McNaughton was welcoming a group of visiting Canadian editors and other correspondents to army headquarters and naturally took to the press conference centered on Dieppe.

"The lessons of Dieppe are still being studied," he said.

"In combined operations it is necessary for each of the forces concerned—land, navy and air—to assess and coordinate its own part. And after that, not to tell the enemy all that has been learned."

The general said long training was necessary and stressed that he did not rule out a quick succession of raids if that should be decided upon.

"Matters were gone at thoroughly," he said. "We have to develop and learn technique. But just as in industry, when you have the first models it grows easier."

"There is one thing that should be said—this raid proved the alertness and confidence under fire and the absolute devotion to duty."

Lord Bennett Arrives From Great Britain

SAINT JOHN, N.B., Aug. 27.—Viscount Bennett, former prime minister of Canada, arrived here today from New York and continued on to Moncton, N.B.

At St. John, N.B., his brother, Capt. Ronald V. Bennett, said he would go to Moncton but thought it likely the former prime minister would visit his home town of Hopewell Cape, N.B.

Capt. Bennett said his brother arrived in the United States by plane some days ago.

After setting in England, the former prime minister returned to Hopewell Cape once but this is his first visit to Canada since he was raised to the peerage.

Six Are Killed

BOHMA, Aug. 27.—(CP)—Six persons were killed today when troops fired on a crowd of demonstrators attempting to set fire to private property.

Mr. Fraser was a dinner guest of Mr. Roosevelt last night, and after that, the two, along with Joseph C. P. former ambassador to Japan and Walter Nash, the New Zealand minister, went to the president's study and talked until 2 a.m.

U.S. Army Planes Raid Lashio Base

CHUNGKING, Aug. 27.—(AP)—United States army planes raided the Japanese base at Lashio, Burma, yesterday, shooting down two enemy fighter planes and probably destroying two more, Lt. Gen. Joseph W. Stilwell's headquarters announced today. All planes returned safely, the announcement said.

'BOMB JAPAN' BASE Japs Leaving Chuhsien City

By GEORGE WANG
CHUNGKING, Aug. 27.—(UP)—The Chinese Central News Agency reported today that the Japanese have begun to withdraw from Chuhsien in the interior of Chekiang province, which the Chinese hope to use as a base from which to bomb Japan.

The bulk of the Japanese garrison at Lashio, another "Bomb Tokyo" base about 100 miles up the Irrawaddy river, is being moved to the Port of Mow, also has withdrawn, the agency reported.

Only section Japanese forces were said to be left to meet Chinese onslaught on the city.

The Japanese hoped and set Chuhsien after battle withdrawing.

There was no information on the situation at Kufu, another "Bomb Tokyo" base about 100 miles up the Irrawaddy river, the third principal city which the Chinese hope to capture as a base for raids on Japan.

The news agency report conflicted somewhat with an earlier statement by a military spokesman who said the Japanese had concentrated large forces in a triangle formed by Chuhsien, Lashio and Kufu, apparently in preparation for a strong stand.

Regarding Japanese strength in occupied areas outside of China, the spokesman said they had five divisions in Burma and two each in Malaya, Thailand and Indochina. He said one division had recently at Haiphong in Indo-China, was transferred to Japan soon in Burma.

No increases in Jap forces in northern Burma were reported, although some units reportedly were moving from Myittha in that region toward the frontier of Yunnan province.

The Japanese last week shipped 200,000 bags of rice to Japan from Saigon in Indo-China, the spokesman said.

SOVIET PLANES RAID GERMANY DURING NIGHT

BERLIN, From German Broadcast, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Russia's warplanes attacked eastern, northeastern and southern Germany during the night and one of the raiders succeeded in reaching the suburbs of Berlin, the German radio reported today.

High explosives and incendiaries were dropped at random, but no noteworthy damage was caused, the broadcast said. (A Reuters report from Stockholm said the Berlin suburbs of Lichtenberg and Dahlem were bombed.)

Get Long March
LISTOWEL, Ont., Aug. 27.—(CP)—Officers and men of Bennett's Imperial forces will then be able to begin the long march to the east, the Daily Mail emphasized.

Great rewards await the allied forces which can smash the enemy's striking power in North Africa, the Daily Mail emphasized.

Great rewards await the allied forces which can smash the enemy's striking power in North Africa, the Daily Mail emphasized.

Russia's amazing counter-offensive on the Moscow front, which has already hurled the Germans back 25 to 30 miles, reflects a brighter trend for the Red army today.

Moreover, Hitler's furious drive against Stalingrad appeared to have been at least temporarily checked as the Red army headquarters announced.

"We are holding the enemy onslaught and wearing down his manpower,"

German field headquarters admitted that Marshal Timoshenko's armies had launched bitter counter attacks against Nazi positions west of Stalingrad, but asserted they had been driven off with great losses under German aerial attack.

The Germans also acknowledged heavy Russian assaults on the central front.

A Vichy (French) radio broadcast asserted the German had executed a new break-through against Stalingrad and had advanced within 31 miles of the important Volga river bridge, but Soviet dispatches said the thrust had been wiped out.

A few German tanks succeeded in penetrating into the depth of our defenses. They were destroyed by our guns and incendiary bombs, the Russian command said.

70-MILE FRONT
Frontline estimates said the Russians were attacking the German-held Rzeszów-Rybnik rail line 120 miles west of Moscow and were battling in the streets of the key Nazi stronghold at Rzeszów.

Reports of a victory at Rzeszów the Germans were throwing fresh reserves into the fierce battle for Rzeszów and were compelling retreat with heavy losses.

SITUATION "NO WORSE"
The Russian situation remained critical but "no worse" according to Stalingrad. There was no contact of a victory at Rzeszów, the German vanguards had reached the Volga river at Dubovka, 50 miles northeast of the city.

To the south, tanked Nazi columns had crossed the Volga river, the rich Gorky oil fields, reaching the town of Mordovsk, 35 miles west of Gorky, at the approach of the German military highway to the middle east.

Many Italians Killed in Clash With Albanians

LONDON, Aug. 27.—(CP)—The Italian army in Albania had it recorded a Moscow broadcast which reported, under a Geneva dateline, that Italian troops had killed many Albanians in a clash in the capital of Italian-occupied Albania.

This account said the Italians lost 20 men killed or wounded and finally had to bring up artillery to end the fight after several days.

It said the Albanians had cut telegraph lines between Tirana and Durazzo and blown up its important bridge near Elbasan.

The Italians have increased the occupation forces from five to eight divisions, the report continued, and are firing into a crowd that is clamping down on Tirana prison for release of captive patriots.

Some 5,000 Albanians have been removed to Italy, it was added.

Lower Gas Ration
For Pleasure Cars

OTTAWA, Aug. 27.—(CP)—New regulations lowering the gasoline ration for those who use their cars for pleasure only are expected to be announced within the next week or so, it was learned here yesterday.

The proposal, as announced in the House of Commons by Munitions Minister Howe last June 17, is to issue a new ration book for pleasure drivers, who will be in category "AA", and will receive less gasoline than those in category "A", the lowest category at present.

At that time Mr. Howe said he could not at the moment indicate what allowance would be given those in category "AA" and he said it would take some time to set up the new category.

At present the "A" category ration books provide 60 coupons, the value of each coupon being four gallons in British Columbia and five in the prairie provinces.

Airman Charged
In Fatal Crash

CALGARY, Aug. 27.—(CP)—LAC. Michael James Palatychuk, 22, of No. 6 Service Flying Training School, R.C.A.F., was charged in police court here yesterday with manslaughter, reckless driving and causing bodily harm as the result of a car accident earlier in the day in which Cpl. H. J. Mann, 29, No. 3 R.F.T.S., formerly of Winnipeg, was killed.

Injured were Mrs. Elrene Mann, wife of the dead airman, and LAC. Robert de Armand.

LAC. Palatychuk was remanded until Sept. 3 on all counts and did not enter a plea. Bail was fixed at $1,000.

It is alleged a car driven by Palatychuk struck a guard rail on the Shuldrick bridge on the Bowena highway five miles west of Calgary. According to police, a section of the rail 30 feet long and 2½ inches by 4½ inches was driven through the right side of the car into the back seat where it struck Cpl. and Mrs. Mann.

Federal Loans
For New Homes
Start Sept. 1st

OTTAWA, Aug. 27.—(CP)—Finance Minister Iley last night announced that a home extension plan, designed to create new housing accommodation by loans to householders, will be in operation by Sept. 1.

The loans will be made available in all cities and towns in which there is a housing shortage caused directly or indirectly by war activity.

The plan follows an announcement by Mr. Iley in the House of Commons last month of an item being included in the supplementary estimates to enable householders to divide their homes into self-contained duplexes or apartments by a limited government guarantee of loans being provided.

"The plan is similar in most of its essentials to the old Home Improvement Plan," said Mr. Iley. "The new plan, however, is solely for the purpose of creating new housing accommodation, and not for the purpose of assisting owners to improve or repair the homes which they now occupy."

The plan was one of several methods adopted to meet the housing shortage which has been developed in many Canadian municipalities as a result of war activities.

To enable the owners of existing residential buildings to increase the number of available housing units by dividing their homes into self-contained duplexes or apartments, a limited government guarantee will be given to encourage approved lending institutions to provide the funds required," said Mr. Iley.

Loans will be handled through the chartered banks, and a home owner seeking to take advantage of the plan must be completely self-financed, and loans can be made only to the registered owner of the dwelling in which the additional self-contained housing units are to be created.

TREATED "POLITE"
Travel-Wearied Canadians
Home from Jap Prisons
Tell of East Conditions

MONTREAL, Aug. 27.—(CP)—Eyes reddened with travel-weariness, 60 Canadian repatriates from Japanese territories shuffled off a special train here late yesterday, blinkered at a battery of cameras, smiling warmly at warm shouts of greeting, listened while "O Canada" was sung in French, and then restrained to a swarm of newsmen of their adventures.

They pointedly described their treatment at the hands of the Japs as "polite" and did not discuss reports of atrocities inflicted on prisoners of Nippon.

Most of them had been in internment since Dec. 7 (Dec. 8 in Japan) when Japan dealt the first blow in the Pacific. They had undergone a drawn-out process of customs inspection and close inspection by intelligence and diplomatic officials at New York where they landed Tuesday.

Known the tragic uncertainty of repatriation lotteries when interned were selected for diplomatic exchange.

All had been through the wearying formalities of exchange, the more than two months of shipboard travel, three-quarters of the way around the world and then the long wait in detention camps of customs inspection and close inspection by intelligence and diplomatic officials at New York where they landed Tuesday.

War Strategy
Discussed at
F.D.R. Dinner

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—(AP)—Prime Minister Peter Fraser, of New Zealand, and President Roosevelt and a select set of officials representing the United Nations' leadership.

Planned in Mr. Fraser's honor, the dinner brought together most of the members of the cabinet, the diplomats who represent nations of the Pacific War council, congressional leaders of both parties, top ranking officers of America's armed services and civilian leaders of the war effort.

Business Meeting

Presidential Secretary Stephen Early tabbed it a "business meeting," and said the discussion would deal with the war.

Here on a 10-day stay by plane from the West coast, which he reached Tuesday by an undisclosed route. He was accompanied by Brig. Gen. Patrick J. Hurley, U.S. minister to New Zealand.

Importance of last night's session was stressed by the urging of the British embassy that it be not postponed because of the plane-crash death of the Duke of Kent.

Although the conversations were expected to cover the entire field of Allied war efforts, special stress was presumed likely to be laid on the southwestern Pacific strategy and New Zealand's part in it.

Importance of last night's session was stressed by the urging of the British embassy that it be not postponed because of the plane-crash death of the Duke of Kent.

Although the conversations were expected to cover the entire field of Allied war efforts, special stress was presumed likely to be laid on the southwestern Pacific strategy and New Zealand's part in it.

Shortage of Nurses

The shortage of trained nurses in Canada steadily causes greater concern, and the Canadian Nurses' Association has pointed out the urgent necessity for "attracting into the profession young women of the right type and with the aptitude for nursing."

Under normal conditions, the Association points out, there are about 22,000 graduate nurses available to serve the population of Canada. At present, however, only every 10 or 11 patients in need of nursing care.

Since the war began, 1,500 nurses have enlisted for service in the armed forces. This number is sure to increase. Expanding industry is also making heavy demands upon the nursing profession. In the average year, there are in training in Canada about 11,200 student nurses and about 3,000 graduate annually—30 per cent of whom marry within two years.

There is also a lack of nurses capable of teaching. Canada has only 172 superintendents of nurses, of whom only 86 have special training in the field of education.

The Canadian Nurses' Association frankly calls the situation alarming and welcomes Ottawa's recognition of it as a serious problem. The Government has made a grant of $75,000 to provide facilities for the tuition of teachers, supervisors and administrators in the field of nursing. The Association is working out plans of its own for enlarging the roll of qualified nurses.

It is encouraging to note that no one has formulated a remedy along the line of lowering the standards of the profession. That would be deadly.

The Association relies mostly on its special appeal to "the right type of young women."

For such young women nursing offers, as always, a magnificent training, a reasonable living, a fuller and richer life.

One Consoling Fact

While it does not make his bill any smaller, the taxpayer may reflect with some satisfaction that the money he pays on his higher income taxes goes into the treasury to help defray the cost of the war, not handed out to meet the cost of his personal fight against inflation on the home front.

Those who are old enough to remember the course of events during the former war will appreciate the difference. In the former struggle measures were taken to control the cost of living in Canada. As a result there developed a race between rising prices and the demand for higher wages for everybody. As prices went up wages were forced up, and as wages rose prices rose again. In the deadly upward spiral wages never came to rest, but to keep up with the rising cost of living.

The demands on the wage-earner's pocket were as heavy as they will be under the latest budget, but they never borrowed at fantastic rates of interest, and even by the sale of tax-free bonds. At the end of the war the taxpayer's pocket was empty and the budget was a disaster. This was translated into interest-bearing debt.

There time into trying to "pay as we go" the expense of the war, while control regulations are holding inflation in check. Though our pockets may be as empty as they were in 1918, we are now paying for the war, not to finance a futile national-wide scramble to keep up with a price boom.

The Air Front

Fifty Axis planes a day seems to be about the average bag of R.A.F. fighters and ground forces in the English Channel, over the British Isles and the seawall. One day in a recent week they destroyed 20 many on two days, and on the third day the Russians say, and back it up with detailed figures, that they have disposed of 3,000 enemy planes in the last three months, an average of 50 more per day. Considering the extent and ferocity of the fighting and the heavy concentration of air power on the part from any lower figure would seem to be out of proportion.

These items total up to 100 Axis planes per day either completely destroyed or put indefinitely out of commission in these areas—leaving out of the count those shot down by the R.A.F. and the Luftwaffe, and Russian raids over Germany itself. And there is no reason to doubt the consistent official claims that Allied losses run well below this figure.

To build one hundred planes in a day requires a lot of material, a large number of skilled workmen and adequate plant and equipment. The R.A.F. and the Luftwaffe is drawing on the conquered countries, and has perhaps sufficient supplies of both. But his factories are being systematically blown to pieces at an accelerating rate.

There is nothing yet to indicate a shortage of enemy planes. But if the Allies are losing as many planes and airmen as they are, the war is being won.

torities without doing corresponding damage to the Axis, and if Axis production were going up as fast as Allied production is expanding, there would be anxiety in London and Washington and Ottawa. That there are misgivings in Berlin over the end of the air war is hardly open to doubt.

Ten Years of War

It has become common to say the war in China began five years ago. In fact it is twice that long since Japan began the armed encroachment which five years ago developed into an open and active attack. It was in 1922 the fighting was started at Shanghai, and there has been no time since when the Chinese were not somewhere suffering or defending themselves against piecemeal absorption of their territory.

Japan, not Germany, is the senior member of the aggressive partnership in point of time. The plotters at Tokyo had their eye on Germany's move to the east while Hitler was fighting the "bloody election campaign" in the history of the Reich to get himself into power, and while Mussolini was writing disingenuous essays of respect for newspapers in this continent.

The fight China has made against the insidious and unceasing plans to dismember it and set up puppet states under Japanese control has few parallels in history. Nor has it fared better since Japan enlisted twenty-six other countries against itself. But there are signs that the Chinese may have been able to oppose masses of poorly armed men against superiority of equipment.

The Pacific war council is said to have worked out at Washington plans for getting to the Chinese forces the supplies of planes and tanks and guns they so badly need. Never did men more deserve help, and outside Russia there is no other place where these "tools" can be used to better account.

The following article is contributed by a well known Alberta writer, long been actively interested in public affairs of the province and the nation. It points out the great opportunity now before the Conservative Party to build anew.

The meeting in September of Conservative laymen at Port Hope may well be the first step in the revival of that party. That has been the case in recent years in the low level both in public estimation and in the mediocrity of its personnel. It is not only its personnel, but its policy. Equally, few will dispute that in the national interest every effort should be made to re-establish its history. Position that the party capable of forming an alternative government. To do this there must be a democratic reconstruction of the party.

Under Mr. Bennett the Conservatives were in power from 1911 to 1913. That period pretty well ended the great depression. The government was not a success, but honest administration under great difficulties, but no opportunity was taken to re-establish the party.

Moreover, the Conservatives probably suffered more than any other national group from the loss in the first world war. The party in the ordinary course would have been content to wait for the return of the party. This does not mean that the Conservatives are by any means devoid of men of ability.

The party is not a party of a voluntary basis, as members of numerous boards and commissions are elected by the public. Their time and energy to the party. The majority of cases of Conservatives of these men, however, were taken into the party by the leaders and have played no role in the party.

The disintegration of the party was almost set in by the action of Mr. Bennett's serious declaration of his reform program. In 1933 by an overwhelming majority, Mr. Bennett retired from the party.

Mr. Manning took over the party. With an eye to the future, he set out a policy for the party in the future. The party is not a party of a voluntary basis, as members of numerous boards and commissions are elected by the public. Their time and energy to the party.

Opportunity Knocks for Conservatives

for salvation, and thereafter a broad program of reform based on humanitarian considerations.

No one will deny that this is a generally referred to as a democratic system is by no means perfect. During the last one hundred years of unrelenting development and progress, social injustices have been bound to occur. These injustices have been forgotten. Practices harmful to the general public and, indeed, to business and industry itself were inevitable, but these are merely temporary evils. They can be corrected by a country, a number of men, without destroying the institution of private property, private initiative or free competition. The flexibility which is inherent in the capitalist system is by no means perfect.

It is hoped that at the Port Hope conference no attempt will be made to play politics. The duty of every Canadian at the present time is to concentrate all his efforts on the winning of the war and to be prepared to make not only every sacrifice but every effort to win the war. This is a duty which is necessary to every Canadian at the present time is to concentrate all his efforts on the winning of the war and to be prepared to make not only every sacrifice but every effort to win the war.

The high commissioners appointed by the Canadian government to the other commonwealths, and the ministers to foreign countries with no exception are Liberals. The same is true of appointments made to the judiciary and to the senate. To provincial jobs under the war time prices and trade board and on down the line.

It is only when voluntary executives are called for that the assistance of members of the other parties is desired. For Mr. King's time and his legitimate business interests is devoted principally to the maintenance of his political position. He has no time to devote to the maintenance of his political position. He has no time to devote to the maintenance of his political position.

The Co-operative Commonwealth Federation is playing politics with an ingenuously which reflects great credit upon the party. The party is not a party of a voluntary basis, as members of numerous boards and commissions are elected by the public. Their time and energy to the party.

It is not advisable or tolerable without doubt it is better to have a man of moderate means than one man worth a million.

The millionaire, however, is disappearing and it would be sensible to peddle his demise to destroy the ownership of all private property and so incidentally eliminate any of your substance. Looking Them Over

By Jack Kelly

It has taken the toughest war that ever rocked the world to do it, but one state south of the border has at last awakened to the fact that the stress it has placed on football in the past has resulted in complete neglect of the physical development of 90 per cent of its high school students.

That state is South Carolina and it proposes to rectify this matter of neglect, at least in the new high school term starts in a few days.

Paul McLeod, former football coach at Furman University, has been named director of South Carolina's campaign, whose object will be to prepare something like a hundred thousand high school and college boys for the hardships and dangers of war.

"The mistake of the past was in developing football players and letting the rest of the students go their own sweet way," says McLeod. "Former athletes have proved time and again in the air the value of their training in competitive sports."

"From now on we are going to talk of the 100 per cent, not just the 10 per cent interested in football and other competitive sports. I don't think football is ever again to be what it was before the war. I may be talking myself out of a job as football coach in the future, but I am getting my boys ready for whatever lies in the future. The 100 per cent, not just the 10 per cent, will win the war."

Apart from not being a new angle on the great American madness over football, this move by South Carolina is of interest to every Canadian, for we are being bothered by the same war that is pestering folks down Carolina way.

The program designed to harden high school and college boys will be carried out without any added expenses. South Carolina simply wants to make physical training a regular requirement in its curriculum—a regular period that is compulsory for all. Most of the training will be done in gymnasiums and assembly rooms, but a number of schools and colleges are rigging up obstacle courses such as those used to toughen up the Communists.

THE most interesting angle of this movement is that it officially recognizes the fact that the will to win is strongest in the man who is physically fit. It might be a good idea if the Albertans who school and colleges to give some serious thought to this—and also file it away along with other things that must not be forgotten after the war.

RAY ROBINSON holds the distinction of being the first spring rate fighter in 40 years to go far without a single defeat in his record book. Should Robinson decide to retire right now, he would be the first fighter in the history of modern fighting to go through a career without a defeat.

The other three were Jack McLaughlin, the lightweight king, Nantawmigh Jim Barry and a long-forgotten netter—Bully Thom. Barry crossed the fistie frontage in 1906 as a football coach. He won 13 fights and won all of them by knockouts. He quit after the 13th when he took a look at his face. Thom was the kind of fighter who took a half dozen punches in order to get in and land a final of three. He apparently failed to notice the position of his arms. He was in the first 12 battles he fought. No amount of persuasion could ever make Thom enter a ring again after that 13th kayoge victory.

And here's today's best piece of news. The research division of the United States Rubber Company has developed a sort of slip-on cover for your auto tires. "Sandall" made out of carparking, rubber and sand. It will give you up to 3,000 more miles on your present rubber. You have to hold your speed down to 30 miles an hour though. These slip-ons are due on the market in about a month.

The good old days are back for New Yorkers, for here's Babe Ruth back in the uniform of the Yankees after eight long years. He's shown in The Bronx with Catcher Lou Gehrig, who is back too. Net result of the practice: Three homers. He belted 'em into the right-field bleachers.

Connie Mack Predicts
Minors Will Quit Next Year

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 27.—(AP)—There will be enough daddies around to keep the majors and perhaps a few AA baseball leagues going next year but the minor or circule, drained of man-power, will fold up, says Connie Mack, 79-year-old owner-manager of the Philadelphia Athletics.

"We're in for a long war, and there's no use trying to make ourselves believe anything else," said the veteran, here to confer with Eddie Moore, owner of the Richmond Colts, of the Class B Piedmont League.

Predicting that the Class B, C and D leagues haven't a chance in 1943, Mr. Mack, at all recent in stating his reasons.

"Baseball is a national institution now. The fans want it, the soldiers will want it and they are going to give it to them. They want something to see, and those lack in the faraway camps. They want something to read about besides war," he said.

"But this country is in a war and we're going to have our troubles. That's why I say only the majors and perhaps one or two leagues will be able to operate. Our troubles, incidentally, won't be financial ones—there'll be plenty of fans. And it won't be transportation. There's something about a headache already. It will be purely and simply a matter of getting players."

"After all every major league owner realizes that winning the war comes before everything else and we realize the importance of baseball to fill our roster with married men who have more to lose than child. That's what will have to count on and I don't think there'll be enough players for the majors and the minor leagues. So the minors just won't be able to operate."

Mack went into a conference with Moore about the matter, especially an outfielder.

"Is he married?" he asked, and upon getting an affirmative answer, fired one more. "Has he any children?"

Also, said Moore, and Cornelius McGillicuddy abruptly changed the subject.

The two-ball competition, medal round on handicap, will be held Friday morning starting at 10:00 o'clock. This event is open to all women golfers in the city. Competitors may make up their own foursomes and file their entry at the first tee.

Cannon Ball in Big Harness Upset

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 27.—(AP)—The scramble for honors as top three-year-old harness horse of the year became even more involved Wednesday as G. F. Benham's Cannon Ball beat out R. S. Bower's Blue Pre-Hamiltonian favorite, and the two-year-old, who won Sunday's two-year-old stakes, and hardy ever hit a ball.

Moonlight got a foul blow to public morale. It is a sneer at the hopes and dreams of members of this soul brotherhood of golfers who get more desire after hard-working men and women in this world who devote Sunday afternoons to golf courses, and hardly ever hit a ball.

Glenn Gray Gains Berth in Semi-Finals at Banff

BANFF, Aug. 27.—Carl Haymond, Tacoma, was only one over perfect figures on the mile high Banff Springs hotel course Wednesday to win a handy 2 and 1 victory over the favored Ralph Whaley, Seattle, advancing into Friday's semi-final round in the Banff Springs trophy.

Glenn W. Gray, now of Edmonton, and a former Regina and Calgary golfer, will oppose Haymond Friday in the semi-finals. He made a place in the final yesterday by defeating Paul Hester, Seattle, 4 and 3 in a one-sided match.

In the other half of the semi-final draw, it is R. Hester, a new comer to Banff golf week from Hamilton, Ont., will meet Gerry McManis of Seattle. Randall scored an upset Wednesday when he won from Wilkie Bird of Calgary, 2 and 1, and McManis defeated J. Edgar Green, Seattle 3 and 2.

Though they have campaigned throughout the Pacific northwest chiefly around Seattle and Tacoma, Haymond and Whaley had never met before in tournament play. Haymond, whose consistent play since he won the medal Monday with a 75, has impressed the local galleries, fired too many pars and bogleys for the slalaw Whaley and the Tacoma club swinger still reuses the favorite.

Today match play in the Banff Springs Hotel event for men, and Chateau Lake Louise event for men, is suspended in favor of 18 hole medal rounds. Men will be shooting at scratch for the Edward Prince of Wales cup and the ladies will be playing 18 holes also at scratch for the Brewster cup.

The War Today

BY JOHN COLLINGWOOD READE
Even the Loss of Stalingrad
Would Not be Major Disaster

The battle for the approaches to Stalingrad is drawing to its close, and the siege of Stalingrad has begun.

Resigned Russian cities have a habit of withstanding the enemy for a long time, especially when they are not completely surrounded.

The Volga at Stalingrad is very wide, and is a formidable defence barrier. But if the Germans gain the Volga the main objective of their present offensive will be reached. For the Volga is the chief artery of industrial and military transportation in southwestern Russia, and with the Germans on the west bank all traffic on the lower Volga would be halted.

Undoubtedly the loss of Stalingrad and the cessation of traffic on the lower Volga would be a serious blow to Russian military organization. But to regard it as a major disaster would be to reckon without the Russians.

Come to that, the Japanese clashing of the Burma Road was a serious blow to the Chinese military effectiveness, but the Chinese are now conducting a successful, if con- sidered counter-offensive. The un- doubted ingenuity of the United States and the indomitable spirit of the Chinese have found other ways of getting supplies into China, and the same applies to southwest Russia.

RESOURCES BEHIND URALS

The Volga is not the only great river which feeds into the Caspian Sea. There is also the Ural, which reaches the Caspian at Guryev. Guryev is also the terminal of a railway system which runs into the great industrial area of Chelyabinsk and Sverdlovsk. Here is the true centre of the Russian war industry.

The iron mines at Magnitogorsk are replacing the ore lost when the Germans overran the Kirov. Iron area in the Ukraine. Coal, which was formerly obtained from the Donets Basin, is now being drawn from the Kuznetsk Basin as well as in the Ural.

Many of the industries formerly situated in the Ukraine were transferred in their entirety before the Germans overran the territory, and are now operating again behind the Ural. It was reported that one thousand four hundred factories were used to move a single plant from Dnepropetrovsk.

It should not be necessary to point out that a nation which can conceive and carry out so ambitious a project is not going to be forced to capitulate, or even greatly reduce its effort, by losing a single industrial town.

The loss of Kiev, Khar'kov, Dnepropetrovsk and Cherkass was just as serious, yet the Russians have made no attempt to maintain their enormous armies throughout the winter and launch a counter-offensive. It is true they were receiving supplies from the Allies, and they will need more of these. It is also true that their railways were choked with plant and equipment being evacuated to Asiatic Russia, a road of which is now beginning to produce again.

BALANCE STILL WITH RUSSIA

In fact, it is very doubtful whether the Russians suffered as severe an economic blow from the loss of Kiev, Khar'kov and Dnepropetrovsk as the Germans have suffered through the devastating air attacks on Cologne, Essen, Bremen, Hamburg, Düsseldorf, Mainz, Rostock and Lübeck.

The chief danger at the moment is that by reaching the Volga the Germans will cut off the forces of Moscow from the rest of the Russian army, and then, by pouring reinforcements into the Caucasus, set upon them and annihilate them.

This no doubt is their hope and intention. But war is a continuing process having only one final end. It is not a series of completed and unrelated episodes. If the Germans reach the Caspian, they will have presented another problem requiring a solution. They will not merely have killed another hope with nothing left but to mourn.

In this connection, the announcement on Sunday that the War Office has created a new independent command in Iran and Iraq with General Sir Henry Maitland-Wilson as its chief, indicates that the British are already given a great deal of anxious consideration.

It is not likely that British forces will be brought into the northern Caucasus to fight with the Russians, but it is more than probable that should the Germans reach the Volga and split the Russian armies, a general withdrawal of Russian forces into the Caucasus will take place, and the British will come a second line of defence operation in Trans-Caucasia, where the great Bakou oil fields are located.

JAPANESE JUGGLING ACT

Russian supplies will reach the area through the Port of Baku, and be distributed by the Tiflis-Baku Railway. Allied supplies will be distributed through Tiflis in Iran, having been brought in from the Persian Gulf and transhipped at Basra. The accompanying map illustrates the present position of the battle lines, and locates the most recent important developments.

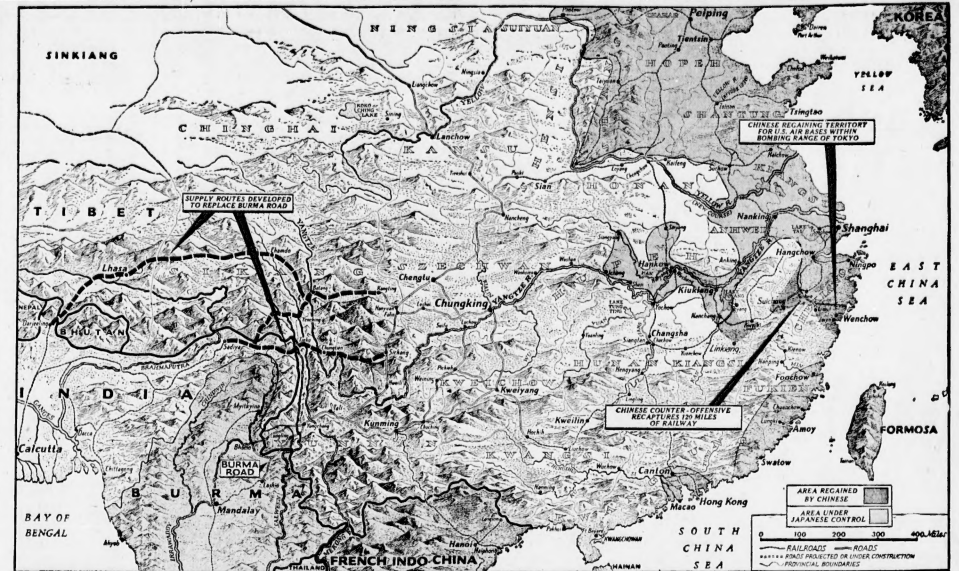

The Japanese are running into difficulties both in China and the Southwest Pacific, which is only to be expected. Given time and opportunity, the Japanese enemy could become extremely formidable.

At the moment the Japanese war efforts are giving an excellent imitation of one of their famous national juggling teams, trying frantically to keep six balls in the air at the same time, while balancing a sword on the nose.

If they got away with it, they will be very dangerous, and it is for that reason that they must be harried and assaulted on at many fronts as possible. As it is, they are threatened with assault from India, and are being assaulted in East Central China, and in the Southwest Pacific, while they are fearful and apprehensive about Russia.

The Japanese have solved an immense empire. But, large as that empire may be, it is entirely encircled by hostile forces. Siberia is uncomfortably close to Japan; so is Alaska. Powerful Allied forces are gathering in the delta of the Ganges with the intention of driving the Japanese back across Burma and opening a clear road for the passage of arms and materials into China.

The Japanese did not take Burma.

because they wanted the place, but they desperately wanted to stop the flow of supplies to the numerically superior and very capable Chinese. The Japanese do want Chinese territory resources, and more than anything, they want a direct protected land route from Manchukuo to the tip of the Malay Peninsula so that they may draw their life and strength from the varied riches of the Dutch East Indies and Malay.

If they could accomplish this in a reasonably short space of time, they would become rich and powerful and very difficult of access. As matters stand at present, their resources are being strained to maintain adequate protection from United Nations attack at a number of widely separated points.

The Americans have gained control of the Solomon. With these in their possession, the Japanese become more precarious and uncertain. New Guinea will become the next Allied objective after the archipelago of the Dutch East Indies has passed under Allied control, and the tide of the Allied counter-offensive will retrace the path of the Japanese offensive.

For a time at least, the Allies may enjoy the advantage, because Australia is a primary base, where as the Japanese are operating a very long way from their primary bases. In the meantime, the Chinese are regaining strategically important territory which the United States air forces need for offensive operations against the main centres of Japanese military power.

Somewhere in Chekiang province is Mr. Roosevelt's Shangri-La—the air base at which American aircraft landed after bombing Tokyo. Aircraft in northern Kiangsi province are within bombing range of Tokyo, and what is just as important—want to fly over Japan, dropping their loads and returning to a Chinese base for refuelling. On the accompanying map, the territory recently regained by Chinese forces is shown by diagonal shading and the area still in Japanese possession is indicated by solid tone.

Transportation, Housing, Two Main Problems

Two major problems now facing the city administration—street railway transportation, and housing accommodation, form the subject of a nation-wide survey to gather details of the plans being adopted in other cities.

McKenney On Bridge

By WILLIAM E. MCKENNEY
America's Card Authority

While the expert player is cautious on the defence in opening new suits, this tendency must be pushed to extremes. Bidding is in order if the high-card situation in the defender's hand and dummy is such that opening new suits may cost a trick, and if there is no apparent need for haste in developing defensive tricks. But if the high-card situation is such as to present no danger at all, it is often best to make an exploratory lead in a new suit.

In today's hand South took his ace of hearts and exited with a king. The ace of trumps was knocked out and South exited with a diamond. Declarer took out trumps, forced out the king of clubs and discarded his losing diamond on dummy's fourth club. South's defence might have had some reason had he held the king or queen of diamonds. But with three worthless diamonds, South had no reason to exit with a heart instead of leading a diamond.

There was reason for the dia-

It was pointed out that this information clears up a misunderstanding to the effect that only members of a harvesting unit, including an operator and four helpers, would be permitted to come from the U.S. to Canada to undertake harvesting work.

The report in this connection issued by the Department of Agriculture Wednesday states:

"Agricultural workers may come to Canada from the United States providing they have sufficient money to enable them to reach their destination in Canada. According to advice received this week by the provincial department of agriculture."

In today's hand South took his ace of hearts and exited with a king. The ace of trumps was knocked out and South exited with a diamond. Declarer took out trumps, forced out the king of clubs and discarded his losing diamond on dummy's fourth club. South's defence might have had some reason had he held the king or queen of diamonds. But with three worthless diamonds, South had no reason to exit with a heart instead of leading a diamond.

The Inquiring Reporter

Will there be much grumbling at the government's plans for coordinating man and woman power to the nation's war effort?

ALD. FRED J. MITCHELL: If, during the three years of war, there has been any grumbling among Canadians, it has been due, in no small degree, to a common feeling that there has been a lack of forceful driving power from government. Officers of services in the early days were either refused or deferred. Round people appeared to be put into square holes, and there certainly existed among many people the feeling that the emergency could not be so great as to demand any serious departure from the old slogan of business as usual. We should all feel far more comfortable now that Prime Minister King has told us that we may expect to hold a job because the government thinks it is the right job for us.

W. "PADDY" GRIFIN, returned soldier: Prime Minister King has formulated what should be a sound plan to utilize all available services of all Canadians. I do not think Mr. King need shrink from the use of compulsion. We may have a freedom of movement, but none of us is so free as to be able to live as we please. We will have to live as we please if we lose this war.

JACK CAMPBELL, carmaker: There will be no kicking about the country of men and women power to the nation's war effort. The one thing Canadians are doing is that they are making the most of the situation. It is a matter of time before the ultimate success in arms shall be the reward of present and future sacrifices.

Military Orders. Orders by Lord J. E. Sackner, officer in charge of the Military Orders. Privy Seal will be awarded at Prince Albert, where the King will be present. General Battle drives with Ankoia, no.

Will Run Again

Edmonton's special relief department, established to handle relief cases during the depression, will exist on Aug. 27, and the 35 families now on the rolls of the department will be transferred to the civil relief department.

During the time the department has been in existence thousands of relief cases have been dealt with and expenditures running into millions of dollars made to meet the necessities of people unable to obtain work.

All members of the staff now employed on the relief department are likely to be placed in other jobs before the department closes out. Of the seven still working in the department two are enlisting, two are being absorbed in the civil service and three others are being placed in jobs within the next few weeks.

H. F. McKee, superintendent of the department, will continue in civil employment to attend to the winding up of the department and also to advise on the 35 cases being transferred to the civil relief department.

Staff members were busy Thursday making up relief files, and with the disposal of many articles and the closing of the department offices and store rooms in the old fire hall. It is expected that the transfer will be completed by Monday afternoon.

Any person or organization desiring to be heard, whether in submission of new material, or in rebuttal, should submit it to the clerk of the legislative assembly, said Dr. Robinson.

Time, Separation Cure for Calf Love

Marriage in Adolescence is Nearly Always a Tragedy;
Young Folk Warned of Possible Misery as a Result of Youthful Unions

Dear Miss Dix—Our son of 17 has been initiated into a girl's life and is now a married man. He was a very sensible, dutiful boy until he started going with her, but he has become so infatuated by her that he will not listen when we try to reason with him and show him how disastrous such a youthful marriage is. The girl is far below him socially and has little education. They would have nothing in common after the little flare of passion burnt out. In addition, the boy has no way of making a living, and I certainly do not want to take on the support of an unwanted daughter-in-law. Can you suggest any way to break up the affair? My son says that the reason he is in such a hurry to marry the girl is because he is afraid something will happen that might make him lose her.

A DISTRACTED FATHER.
Answer—Time and absence are the most potent remedies for the cure of calf love. If you could send your son away to school for a year, or get him a job in a distant city, or even let him make a few months' vacation, he would become better than the one he left behind. He'd meet girls, people, places, and things, with a keener life than his crude, uneducated little fiancée. There'd be new interests, new divisions, new amusements to turn his thoughts away from the girl who is so foolish and business. The world is full of such a number of things he sides love, especially when we are 17.

SOME SACRIFICE
I think, even if you have to make some sacrifice to raise the money to get your son away from home and away from the girl's urging a little, it will be cheaper than having to support a daughter-in-law and her progeny.

Perhaps there is no other one thing that causes more misery than the child marriage. Such are so common nowadays. A boy and a girl meet, think they have fallen in love with each other, and marry. What kind of people they are going without giving one thought to the seriousness of what they are doing when they were young. Their characters are unformed, their tastes as changeable as the wind. They haven't the slightest idea of what they are doing nor what they are going to need and demand in a mate.

But they marry, and before the ink is dry on their marriage license their childish crush on each other is over. And they've fallen in love with somebody else. They want to marry around and have a good time, but they're being told to give their whole lives to the divorce court.

SORROW, RUN

But not before they have brought sorrow and often ruin to their parents who have to take on their support.

Your Baby And Mine Flavor Fish With Cheese and Eggs

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRD

There are many Mama-made excuses for doing the things the mother finds convenient. Sometimes it is harder to lead a child toward more adult habits of behavior than to continue the baby habits so pleasing to him. It is easier to do something one has previously done than to do something new. But that does not excuse the habits nor the mother who perpetuates them.

To give a big child milk or orange juice by bottle cannot be applauded no matter how strong the child protests. It is that obvious that if a child is given a cup of 19 months is quite capable of holding it himself. The fact that he spills some or drinks less or won't drink it that way does not alter the mother's necessity to keep bottles out of the picture.

Mrs. CHU says her 19-month-old son will drink a full quart if given by bottle. "He has some degree of rickets," the doctor says, and it is important that he have his milk. In that case don't you think it is all right to allow him to have it by bottle?

Not even in that case. It is quite possible to give him enough of the milk he needs without bottles. It is also certain that if he is using the milk bottle as a pacifier, he will be inclined to turn down glass dishes in favor of the milk. Such a habit makes for poor nourishment, even if the glass dish is made of plastic. A child's diet should consist of meat, eggs, cheese, all kinds of vegetables and fruits, cereal, bread and butter and cold liver oil, as well as milk to drink.

That milk can be supplied in generous portions of custard or pudding, buttermilk, which he might enjoy by cup because it is different. Milk can be cooked with and added to cereal. A white sauce poured over vegetables takes care of a little more milk can be added to the eggs you scramble for him. There are various frozen desserts or gelatines to be made with milk as a base. One can be so ingenious about this having milk that the child will not suffer though he drinks very little.

Later, when he has forgotten the allure of the bottle and his antics, he can be made to accept the milk from that utensil. Meanwhile he is learning not only more difficult ways of eating but the all important truth that his mother's milk is not the best for him to be served.

Our leaflet, "Increasing the Child's Consumption of Milk," is designed to suggest ways of getting milk into the diet of a child. # When a Girl Marries

By RENE RYERSON MART

THE STORY: While her family was at a late resort, Enid, having arranged for a secret vacation of her own, was alone in the house and alone for the first time in her life. All the excitement Enid had been going out of town on a business trip. At the apartment Enid had been one of her neighbors, handsome young Dr. Henry Holliday. She is embarrassed when the apartment building is visited by the young man. Later Enid returns the child from a vicious dog, she decided to support his mother.

ENID couldn't decide whether she was glad or sorry about what she had learned as he undressed for bed. If Dr. Holliday was a divorced man, she was a free man. And she felt the same way about him and his son had been only a friendly gesture of thanks.

It was Wednesday evening about 8 when her doorbell rang. When she answered it, there stood the doctor. He grinned at her amiably. "It's too late to go to bed, Enid. I thought, maybe, you'd like to take a ride."

Hold Everything

Dr. Holliday interrupted her thoughts. "Want to stop and listen to the music?"

Enid nodded her head in assent. He nosed the car into an empty space beside the high paling fence that separated the opera-house dance floor from the parking lot. There was a colored band in the shell, and they were concentrating on wailing blues. The twining, writhing mass of dancers seemed to like them. There was hardly standing room left on the floor.

Dr. Holliday motioned for service to a pert waitress who had just brought a tray to the next car. "What will you have?" he asked Enid.

She smiled. "You must be a doctor. I just remembered that I hadn't had any supper."

"See here, Private Smith—you can't use the Army's wind tunnel just to dry your hair!"

"I've got insomnia, bad, Doctor. I can't even sleep when it's time to get up."

Curious World —By William Ferguson

A NEW INVENTION RECENTLY DEVELOPED MAKES IT POSSIBLE TO MEASURE THE "SUNFALL" OF COMMUNITIES OF ULTRA-VIOLET RAYS THAT PENETRATE A CITY'S HAZE AND SMOKE.

THE U. S. SINCE PEARL HARBOR, "SUNFALL" ABOUT TWICE AS MUCH MONEY FOR WAR AS IT APPEARED FOR ALL ITS OTHER WARS ADDED TOGETHER.

BASE TEAM PLAYS IN THE BASEBALL WORLD SERIES OF 1942

Answer: Cincinnati and Detroit.

Enid looked down at her amazed smile. She'd been working all day, she hadn't even been out for a breath of air. "I'd be glad to," she said slowly. "If you don't mind waiting until I dress."

"Of course not," he told her. "Just ring my bell when you're ready."

She fairly flew into her clothes. A black wool dress cut on the jacket of white linen suit, the white sandals and a pair of shoes no other woman could have worn. There she stood in her simple arrangement. Then a touch of deep red lipstick matching her nail polish, and perfume on brows and in the hollow of her throat—an evasive fragrance as delicate as the scent of wild flowers.

Her reward was the look Dr. Holliday gave her when he joined her in the hall, a look of admiration and acceptance.

"He really thinks I belong to his class," Enid thought as she settled beside him in the seat of the convertible. "Wonder how he'd act if he knew I was a $20-a-week stenographer off on a hunch?" But she couldn't feel sorry for the deception at the moment.

Dr. Holliday took the river road. He had the top down on the car and above them, the stars shone big and luminous, and were reflected in the still dark reaches of the river. At her dress near the Club Del Rio they could hear the dance music. Enid remembered the last night she had been there with Tom. The night they had run into Grace Dinslow and Norma Benton from the office.

Smaller Glass For Beverages Is Authorized

Alberta Liquor Control Board regulations governing hours for licensed hotels and clubs in the province and the size of glasses of beer which may be served are authorized in a new order-in-council, it was announced Thursday by Hon. Solon E. Low, provincial treasurer. The new regulations are effective Tuesday, Sept. 1.

Licensed premises including clubs, are permitted to remain open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. for the sale of beer.

It is also provided that beer shall be sold in a transparent glass having a fluid capacity of seven and one-half ounces only, the maximum price per glass being 10 cents. The present size of beer glasses is eight ounces.

MILITARY CANTEENS

It was stated that military canteens are not affected by the new regulations setting uniform hours, but they do come under the order which reduces the size of glasses. The officer commanding has supervision over the hours canteens may be open.

Declaring that he had received objections from ex-servicemen's organizations and other groups in connection with the new regulations governing uniform hours, but they do come under the order which reduces the size of glasses. The officer commanding has supervision over the hours canteens may be open.

Under the old regulations, licensed clubs operating between 10 p.m. in the country and 11 a.m. in the city. Under the new regulations they will open at 10 a.m. and close at 10 p.m.

Beer parlors will now open at 10 a.m. instead of 7 a.m. as formerly. The closing hours of 10 p.m. is the same.

FEDERAL APPROVAL

Mr. Low said the federal authorities had approved the reduction in the size of the beer glass, the effect being to pass the recent federal four-cent tax per pound on malt. It is the ultimate result in accordance with the policy of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board. Increased beer prices of 10 cents per dozen pints is already in effect.

Capt. V. MacDonald Believed Prisoner

Believed to be a prisoner of war is Capt. V. MacDonald, son of Dr. T. Forrester MacDonald, of this city, who is missing after army operations in the Middle East on June 14. His parents have received letters from his fellow officers, stating their belief in his capture.

Capt. MacDonald was born in Toronto, N.S., and received his education in Medicine Hat and Edmonton. He is a graduate in medicine from the University of Alberta.

In 1921, he went to England to study for his fellowship in surgery, and while there, he was captured by Lord Horder, the King's physician, to accompany the Duke and Duchess of Sutherland on a world cruise in their yacht.

When the war broke out, the cruising party returned to England and Capt. MacDonald enlisted in the 10th Field Ambulance, Royal Army Medical Corps. He went to France and Belgium and was involved in the evacuation from Dunkirk. He rejoined the unit later and for the past year has been serving in the Middle East.
